About Me

I started out professionally in the early nineties, assisting on video and film between my university studies.

My first major lighting camera credit came in 1997, with a UK / US documentary coproduction about the notorious JonBenet Ramsey murder, featuring the first broadcast interviews with John and Patsy Ramsey.

Since then I have shot numerous documentaries, corporates, commercials, dramas and music videos and worked with almost every popular video and film format. I have filmed sensitive subjects such as depression and bereavement alongside comedies and entertainment shows. I've taken cameras down in a naval submarine and up in a zero-g flight.

For many years I have been a BAFTA member, and I am also a member of the Guild Of Television Camera Professionals (GTC).
